Happy Fall! Weather in the Dakota's never ceases to amaze me. We had such a hot, dry summer and now it seems like fall is wet and rainy. Maybe winter will be average. Whatever that means. But regardless of the weather, The SD SimmenTeller and ND Simmental Scene is publishing our November issue and looking forward to the sale season.

The November issue always means updating the sale calendar. While it doesn't seem like such a big task, I like to try and confirm dates. I go to lots of websites and Facebook pages. I am surprised that very few have their upcoming sale date posted. It's never too early to "Save the Date." If you notice any errors on the sale calendar, please reach out to me to get it corrected.

December brings annual meetings for both the North Dakota and South Dakota Simmental Associations. Thanks to all that volunteer their time to serve on boards and promote Simmental cattle in North and South Dakota. We appreciate you!

Enjoy the day!

WOMEN OF ASA

LYNETTE THOMPSON & SHANON ERBELE

Reprinted with permission from the February Register

By Lilly Platts

Lynette Thompson has been an integral part of her family's operation, TNT Simmentals, since its inception. Her years of dedication have now inspired her daughter, Shanon Erbele, to become the next generation to carry on the family business.

Lynette Thompson and her husband, Kevin, built TNT Simmentals, near Almont, North Dakota, from the ground up. Early on, Lynette dedicated her time to helping run the cow herd and has been a vital part of the success of the business. From recordkeeping to running equipment, she is a part of every aspect of the ranch and is a lifelong advocate for the Simmental breed.

The generational transfer of agricultural operations is one of the most pressing issues facing the beef industry today, with many young people not interested in taking over family operations and others wishing they had the capital to become involved. For the Thompson family, thanks to many years of hard work and a good foundation, this transition is happening and in a unique scenario, the ranch is being put into their daughter's hands. Their daughter, Shanon Erbele, has continually increased her involvement with the ranch over the years and alongside her husband, Gabe, is now in the process of purchasing the cow herd from her parents. The Erbeles will continue to ranch near Lehr, North Dakota and once they have taken over the cow herd and TNT name, Kevin and Lynette will continue to live on the place near Almont. It is every parent's wish to set their kids up for success, and for the Thompson family, the years of dedication to building a genetically-strong cow herd are helping to do that for the Erbeles.

Lynette didn't set out to become a seedstock producer, but in the process of building their business, she became extremely passionate about the industry. TNT Simmentals started with two registered cows, and in 2020 they held their 35th annual sale, sending bulls into commercial and registered herds across the country. Thompson has been integral to the success of the operation, and is a dedicated supporter of the breed. She was named the 2011 County Woman of the Year for her four-state area, and through Kevin's time on the ASA Board of Trustees, was involved in a variety of events.

As Lynette remembers, working in agriculture wasn't something she initially believed could be viable. "My family all had grown up on a farm and remembered all the hard work and how tough it was to make a living. I was the only one of six kids that became a fulltime rancher.

For Shanon, agriculture and the beef industry have been a part of her life since the beginning. "As a kid, I always had a great love for the ranch and for the cattle. I was always in my dad's back pocket, following him anywhere he went. From around eight years old, my sister Kendra and I did most of the health checks on all the cattle at our various pastures while mom and dad were in the field making hay, which I later learned to run all the equipment as well."

After Lynette married Kevin, they worked several jobs before settling at their current home. Simmental has been at the core of the cow herd from day one. "We knew starting out on our own, we needed to find a product that we could add value to. That is why we decided to get into the seedstock business. We fell in love with our Simmentals right from the beginning," Thompson remembers.

The Simmental breed has been a great fit for the Thompson family. Their main focus is on commercial producers, and through the years they have developed a respected cow herd and dedicated base of customers. For the Erbeles, the breed will continue to be a focus. She explains, "In 2014 my parents helped us purchase 60 commercial cows to start raising embryos for them. With the income from these cows, we purchased 40 registered cows from my parents and they allowed us to sell the bull calves from these cows in their annual sale. Over the next six years, we continued to purchase cows from them and grow our herd to where we will be calving around 275 cows this spring."

Family has also been at the center of the operation and will continue to be. The Thompsons raised four kids on the ranch, and Lynette believes that the lessons they were able to learn from agriculture were some of their greatest. "I liked teaching them that some of those toughest years with hail, drought, scours, and other challenges were some of our biggest blessings. They taught us how to better manage the land and cattle and how to use those good years to stock up for the bad ones. I also remember our loan officer telling me the places where the wife works right next to her husband and knew all the farm records, were his most successful farms and ranches. I thought I should look for a full-time job to help make ends meet and get health insurance, but he discouraged me from that and felt I was a way bigger asset to the ranch."

Shanon is also raising their family of six children on the ranch, and building upon the lessons she learned growing up. Lynette's ability to balance the responsibilities of raising a family while also holding important roles on the ranch has been important to Shanon. "Taking over for my parents has always been something I have thought and dreamt about, but never thought it would become a reality. My mom has

ASA RECOGNIZES THOMPSONS AS 2021 GOLDEN BOOK WINNERS

By Dan Rieder, Reprinted from the October issue of the Register

Editors Note: TNT Simmental was recently awarded the 2021 Golden Book along with two other operations.

The Explosive Difference

Starting from scratch in the mid-1980s, Kevin and Lynette Thompson have spent 35 years building a nationally recognized and highly respected cow herd. Their 300-head TNT cow herd, located at Almont, North Dakota, consists of red and black purebred Simmental along with red and black SimAngus and a smaller herd of Red Angus.

The Thompsons have effectively marketed their genetics through an annual sale, the Genetic Explosion Sale, offering more than 130 bulls. Steers have traditionally been backgrounded before going to market, while the majority of heifers are bred to go back into the herd as replacements or to be marketed as bred heifers.

Breeding emphasis has been consistently placed on fleshing ability, performance, udder quality, and strong maternal traits. Their slogan "The Explosive Difference" accurately portrays the operation's focus on producing genetics that satisfies a long list of repeat, commercial bull buying customers.

Kevin is quick to credit Lynette for her role in their operation. As equal partners, she has worked alongside Kevin for the entire journey.

Throughout their long career in the cattle industry, the Thompsons realized the need for promoting and advertising the cattle they were selling. They also realized that there was strength in numbers and believed in carrying their share of that load. That's why Kevin served four three-year terms on the board of the North Dakota Simmental Association and spent two three-year terms as a member of the ASA Board of Trustees between 2007 to 2013.

The Thompsons are parents of a son and three daughters and are grandparents to 15 active members of the next generation. "Our grandkids bring us so much joy," Kevin said. The oldest daughter, Shanon Erbele, and her husband, Gabe, are taking the necessary steps to allow them to carry on the tradition of TNT Simmentals as Kevin and Lynette look ahead to retirement.

In addition to the Thompsons, the ASA also recognized the Parke and Nina Vehslage family, PVS Simmentals, of Brownstown, Ind., (above) and the Tom Hook family, Tom Hook Farms of Tracy, Minn., (below) as 2021 Golden Book Winners.

This set of heifers is from the very heart of our herd and will make outstanding cows for any operation. We have sorted them into groups of 5 and will sell as the complete group. Each group is made up of similar genetics so that if you like one, odds are you'll like the other 4 too, both for phenotype and genotype. We also decided to sell 5 as individuals to help the smaller operator or first-time buyer who may not want or need 5 head.

Keep in mind these are age advantaged heifers since most are born in January, February or first part of March. In typical operations they will be well over a year of age when breeding and over 2 when calving. Being more mature will help them stay in your herd and be productive for many years. Heifers can be viewed starting November 1st at the ranch.

Our Sale format will be a Private Treaty Bid Auction. The bidding will open November 13th with the sale concluding on November 27th. Bidder numbers will be assigned to all bidders and we will have a bid sheet for each lot to record your bids. Bids can be accepted in person, over the phone or through text. All heifers will have a base price of $1200 and thereafter a minimum increase of $50 per animal. All customers that bid prior to the close on November 27th at 2:00 PM CST will have the opportunity to bid on any lot as we close them.

All heifers have been bangs vaccinated and will be sold with registration papers and transferred at no cost. Heifers need to be picked up within 7 days of sale. Of course, we will help coordinate trucking when needed. Please call Mike at 605-237-4663 or Owen at 605-551-9016 to line up a viewing!

HELGOE, MYERS WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

Congratulations to Noah Helgoe, Cavalier ND, on being chosen as the ND Simmental Association Scholarship winner. His parents are Chris and Kari Helgoe. He will graduate from Cavalier Public High School this spring and plans to attend NDSU this fall where he will start his education to become a veterinarian. He has been involved in 4H, community projects and school activities. Noah is the fourth generation cattle rancher and has developed a passion for animals. His family has been raising simmental cattle since the 1980's. They chose the breed for growth and maternal ability. He currently has his own herd of purebred and SimAngus cows that he AI's to some of the top bulls in the country. In the future, Noah plans on expanding his herd's genetics and getting new bloodlines incorporated into his herd. We wish Noah the best of luck as he pursues his higher education.

Congratulations to Kendra Myers, Kathryn ND on being chosen as the ND Simmental Association Scholarship winner. Kendra is the daughter of Greg and Kim Myers. Kendra is currently a freshman at Black Hawk East College pursuing an ag business degree. Kendra has grown up showing and raising Simmental cattle. She is currently a ND Junior Simmental Association board of Trustee. Throughout her junior career she has been very active with the ND Junior Simmental Association, 4H, FFA, and the ND Junior Points Show Association. She has a small herd of purebred Simmental cattle, consisting of several females that she has showed over the years that she runs with her parents Simmental cattleherd. Kendra believes that the opportunities available to the junior members today are what helps them grow and achieve success with their future plans. We wish Kendra the best with her future plans. ■ been such a mentor to me with all of the ASA cattle records, and I have been slowly taking over for her as she works her way towards retiring from her job on the ranch and towards becoming a full-time grandma of her 15 grandkids," she explains. "I recall as a kid that times were really tough for us. We worked alongside our parents, from babies in our car seat bouncing in the tractor until we graduated. This allowed us to learn that though ranching can be a tough, stressful occupation, I wouldn't have wanted it any other way, and I wouldn't want to raise my six kids any other place than on a ranch," she explains. "I have a lot of pride in saying I grew up on a ranch and now watching my kids learn the value of a dollar and hard work is priceless. The work ethic and drive I have today came from working with my parents on our ranch, and I hope my kids can say the same when they are older. We wouldn't be able to do what we do without our faith and the support of our family. With your faith leading you and your family behind you, the possibilities ahead of you are unlimited!"

AM I FULL OF CRAP?

Calf scours are not inevitable. A strong prevention program is non-negotiable. Dependable scour prevention is essential for calf welfare, employee morale and business profitability. The immune system's response to vaccination is variable and unpredictable. That's why giving preformed antibodies instead of relying on a vaccine to stimulate antibody production is so important. I'm all for removing uncertainties. So yes, I stand by this product. (And no, I'm not.)
